Premier Bill Bennett told 150 demonstrators from the government's rail car manu-facturing plant in Squamish that he will do all he can to save their jobs, but could give no positive assurances of government action.

The demonstrators, who spent more than three hours Tuesday in front of the legis-lative buildings, seemed con-tent with a promise by Ben-nett that he would visit Squamish either this weekend or early next week.

But protest organizers agreed as the crowd climbed back on their five buses to catch the ferry home that they knew little more now than they did before their Vic-

The bid is being prepared now, he said, and the provincial government is prepared to subsidize Railwest if that's what is necessary to get the

"We're preparing our bid now for the 300 cars and we hope they (federal officials) will respond in time to pre-vent layoffs," the premier

The controversy has vices, which will be paid for by all received a lot of attention elsewhere because the problem is more or less universal. In Nanaimo, the issue is more clearly defined and illustrated than elsewhere.

It is a serious problem. There's no doubt abut that; the provincial department of municipal affairs has initiated investigations of half a dozen complaints of municipal staff or councillors misusing inside information to make private profits.

The case in Nanaimo is somewhat different. No one is alleging that Ney helped his numerous real estate and land development companies to profit from inside information, or that he actively promoted his companies' in terests as alderman and mayor of Nanaimo. It is not quite so simple.

Ney has been scrupulous about separating his business affairs and his political business. He vacates the chair as chief magistrate at council meetings whenever civic affairs touch on his interests, and since by one estimate Ney and his firms control but in Nanaimo the extent of his inalmost one-fifth of the undeveloped land in Nanaimo, that happens frequently. The point is not that Ney and his companies have done anything illegal; they have not. It is that the scope of Ney's activities over the last cut off from public use prime 30 years in the Nanaimo area has been recreational areas, lakes and so broad that he can't help falling into some conflict or others.

Seal Semantics

Semantics and sealing

We visit our neighborhood butcher shop and buy some baby beef liver or lamb chops for dinner, and give not a thought to

Law-abiding, hard-working fishermen on the Magdalen Islands of Quebec and northern Newfoundland hunt seals as part of their livelihood. That Welsh crusader, Brian Davies of New Brunswick and other self-interest groups such as Greenpeace turn out a constant barrage of propaganda tinged with sentimentality, the end result of which is a veritable hate campaign against those east coast fishermen.

On CBC radio March 20 a reporter visited a retired fisherman and his wife in St. Anthony, Nfld. After a short conversation the homemaker broke down because the livelihood of her son and other townspeople was in jeopardy because of Greenpeace, Davies and their fleet of helicopters.

Davies said on the radio program that he has $125,000 this year to spend in oppos-ing the seal hunt. The average fisherman earns roughly $2,500 during the six-week hunt, approximately half his yearly income, working from dawn to dusk in freezing weather on dangerous floes of moving ce, so he can feed his family and stay off government handouts.

The federal government rigidly inspects and enforces the annual hunt regulations regarding survival of the species and humane killing. But the general public and most of the news media choose to accept at face value claims by self-interest groups such as Greenpeace.

My uncle and grandfather were New-foundland fishermen, living in a peaceful village without the need for locks on their doors. Arts Blackout?

I could compliment you on the excellent book reviews, the Beastall gardening column, the comics, your editorials but as my main interest is in art I'm put in the blue dumps by your art coverage.

Victoria visual artists are as separated from the rest of Canada as the Quebecois who is restricted to his own cultural references. Not only are we the last to hear of shows open for our consideration but the time element usually does not allow participation. The same goes for grant applications. The emotional rhetoric given to the killing of seals would be more appropriate if applied to the unborn and suffering children of the

20-20 Blindness

Perhaps it would not be totally ac curate to describe Victoria Labor Council president John Schibli as suffering from 20-20 blindness, but when he accused the federal government of "being callously indifferent to the country's unemployment problem in order to create a climate favoring withdrawal of anti-inflation guidelines (Times, March 16) the temptation was provided.

Governments, as administrators for the employing class, have about as much effect on unemployment as they have on hurricanes. The present Anti-Inflation Board is a partial rebound of federal governemnt devaluations of currency over the past few years for the very goal of preventing unemployment and stimulating market demand

Example: From 1954 to 1970, the nount of currency in circulation was increased 3.15 times more than increases in the gross national product, according to an annual report of the Bank of Canada. The reason given was "to help stimulate a demand for goods and services, thereby generating more jobs." Other examples could be cited.

The high-priced world jobless rate now existing should prove the helplessness of governments motivated by Keynesian fairytales to prevent depressions but they can inflate prices. Of course governments of the left and of the right co-operate with business to keep wages down, both in boom times and in bust. This is a natural part of the beast known as world capitalism, state and private, and the AIB is another anti wage ploy.

Not only John Schibli and some of the should try to update their political thinking from that of the dirty thirties. There is no way that they can have the wages, prices profit system without the problems it in flicts upon the majority. The answer is to abolish employment, of which unemployment is a natural corollary, by making the means of life the common possession of mankind. From each according to ability, to each according to need. J. G. Jenkins

Student Debates

You might report on the return of formal debates in public for students. In recent years, traditions of language use that took many generations to develop have been ignored in favor of popular fads in the schools. This trend seems to have gone further in the public than in the private schools. The latter seem to excel in debating at present. As formal debating is restored in full to the public schools however, the general level of skill in language use may be expected to match that of all others.

The use of courtesy, grace, order, orna ment, feeling and reason in support of opi-nion are all language skills that are being restored by the return of formal debating. There is no substitute for these skills They were taught in the schools of rhetoric in Greece and Rome, and they need to be taught today. Formal debates embody the practice of the finest traditions in the use of language.

Our community television Channel 10 is to be congratulated for broadcasting the student debates. They are lively affairs and well-worth broadcasting. The Times reports fully what passes for debate in the legislature. You might do better to report the student debates.—F. B. Cahill, 2427 Nottingham Road.

Plea for Sober Moderation

problem in Canada today? Is it inflation as many authoritative men will tell you? Or is it exceptionally heavy un-employment? Perhaps the political consequences in Quebec of such abnormally high levels of joblessness?

Or the equally exceptional size of the balance of payments deficit Canada has been running in recent years and still it? But perhaps it isn't that at all. Is it the very low level of commercial and in-dustrial investment? Or that the sharp rises in wage rates two years ago have left so many convinced that Canadian industry has lost its competitiveness in international markets and cannot successfully face import competition at home?

Perhaps a "main" problem is the social consequences of extreme job uncertainty among young members of the work ile they are still in their formative years? But that may not be it either -perhaps, instead, the relatively low productivity of Canadian industry'

We do not serve any useful purpose, it seems to me, by talking about the "main" or over-riding or even basic problem in the social-political-economic mix in this country today. There are a range of problems, all serious, and generally closebetween inflation and unemployment, as there is between those two problems and the balance of payments deficit. There is a connection, and a troubling one, between the country's international deficit and its extraordinary level of borrowing which has not been for investment purposes but for current consumption, taking that term in its widest meaning to include government services as much as imported goods.

Undisciplined

If there really is a "main" problem it is surely the extraordinarily undisciplined and unrealistic attitude of the Canadian people during the last few years. That, in turn, is the almost inevitable outcome of very bad leadership at various levels, by no means only at that of the federal cabinet itself.

A recent example serves to illustrate

Not long ago, the prime minister warned quite correctly that this country was living beyond its means. The case is undeniable - an adverse balance of payments running above $4 billion year after year, the highest international borrowings last year of any industrial country, acting in total for about one-third of all foreign borrowing done by advanced na-

The figure has been estimated by the great New York financial house, Morgan Stanley, as being between $8 and $9 billion. That is a one year figure roughly one quarter as large as the American investment in Canadian industry which has been worrying Canadians, in varying numbers, for 10 or 15 years. Worst of all, the borrowings were largely not invested in produc-

If this situation does not constitute liv ing beyond the national means it is difficult to imagine what might. Yet the prime minister did not get a very good reaction with his warning. His political op

Canada. It is involved in the entire political process and the poverty of it today is evident throughout that process.

This same poverty of leadership was evident in the labor movement during the worst period of inflation when it adopted a destructive "let her rip" attitude and set out to get the maximum immediate raises it could for the members with no though

There is a direct relationship between that attitude and the difficulty of selling Canadian exports on world markets to-day, and between that problem and current unemployment leveles. The real reason wage and price controls have not come off yet is the uncertainty over the immediate wage demands that would follow and knowledge the further adverse effects that would follow a wage bulge now.

The same deficiencies of leadership are seen in some aspects of the search for new energy sources. One of the few promising ones that has been found involves the gas in the Mackenzie delta. The issue of a gas pipeline down the Macken-zie Valley has led to the most thorough and elaborate studies of likely consequences ever to precede an industrial development in this country. The scope of the studies, indeed, can rarely have been matched in any other country Yet there is a widespread movement (some conservation groups and some politicians), to pre-empt these studies, to shove them aside before their findings are known and to prevent pipeline construction regardless of the evidence. That is not leadership, either by individuals or It is an attempt to replace evidence by private prejudice.

It seems to me that those who believe in single solutions to our wise range of problems will prove in the end to have been dangerously wrong.

It is obvious, as Gerald Bouey of the nents treated it as offensive and Bank of Canada has just warned, again, ridiculed it. Yet leadership does not begin that the effort to work inflation out of the and end with the prime minister of economy must go on and that Canadians must accept a gradualist approach.

It does not follow, however, that only anti-inflationary policies can be in place today. The present level of unemployment does demand some action, for its possibl political consequences as well as for the normal reasons. There is a very real danger that in Quebec the victims of this turn against federalism in disgust. No one here in Ottawa can lightly dismiss that

Unrealistic

On the other hand, it is obvious too that any efforts to bring the level of unemployment down through economic stimulation must be carried out with caution, always fects on inflation.

Much of the talk about stimulation has centred on the sales tax because any downward movement there has a favorable rather than an unfavorable effect on prices. Because industrial investment is so vital to figure employment, the corporation tax could well be a target for adjustment by the government. So far as mestic production is involved, the politically popular corporation tax is really a very indirect and regressive sales tax, ultimately passed on to the consumer. A downward movement there would obably have much better economic effects than another gimmicky approach through special investment incentives.
But most of all these inter-woven roblems need to be treated as a complex from which no one "main" difficulty can be plucked without damage elsewhere. This is counsel of moderation, which is not always popular in this capital. Moderation, however, can more easily be ridiculed than out-argued.

A Family Doctor Reluctantly Performs Abortions

So much has been written recently on this subject that the reader may have tired of it all. Lay groups, pro and con have made countless state-ments in the media. Often these have been more full of sound and fury than significant

Recently a group of Victoria physicians published a state-ment of their concern about the in this city (Times, Feb. 25). I share some of their concerns. I recognize, however, that the single statistic they are reacting to is significant as much for what it omits as for what it actually says.

What I wish to present here seen in print before. I am a general practitioner in Vic toria. I treat families. Whole families. Sometimes I perform therapeutic abortions

When I entered medical school I never imagined that abortions would one day be legal. The idea that I would be doing them would have surprised me. I have this in com mon with any doctor who trained before the middle 60s. Abortion seemed only of con-

Later as a senior student l began to realize the size and consequences of the abortion problem. We were constantly seeing patients on the usly ill due to hemorrhage and infection following criminal abortions. The numbers were startling to me Even more startling was the case of a lovely blond girl in her early twenties who, fearing prosecution and disgrace, had finally coming to hospital. By then the infection involved her

But she was aware of everything. I remember how frightened she was before she died and how desperately she wanted to live. I remember the

And I remember how very angry I was at the criminal abortionists. The idea that laws might be changed to permit doctors to do abortions safely had not occurred to me. Abo tion was an illegal act. Black and white is always easy. It wasn't my problem

My early years in practice provided similar memories of women who although fully aware of the risks involved (I made them aware) sough criminal abortions. Hadn't they done so for centuries Later as abortion was legalized elsewhere these desperate women spent large sums to ge safe abortions in the U.S. 1 even had one patient who wen to Japan. She wasn't rich. She had to borrow the money

I was deeply puzzled that so many women over so long a time had faced the risk of severe illness or death at great expense to be aborted of wanted pregnancies. After much thought I finally came to accept that as a man I simply cannot fully understand what it really feels like to be pregnant and not want to be pregnant.

Not being able to fully empathize, I must therefore accept what the patient tells me at face value. This gives

lves and their lives and their relationships with everyone they know and love. These women feel as if their whole future has exploded. We wan argue that this ought not to be so but the fact is that it is so and we must deal with that to have in her mind a pretty fixed idea of how many children she can cope with physically and emotionally (to say nothing of financially) and of when she can cope with them. A lot of young women pregnant for the first time feel they are "not ready" for motherhood. Many women with a family already feel they "can't handle" another child. Considering my own ex perience of a lot of women in dividually, I have come to realize that their own assessment of their own capabilities is usually realistic. I have their middle years whose mar riages were "on the rocks" and for whom the problems all seem to have begun with that

The stresses and strains thus placed on the marriage and the family inter-relationships finally broke them down. The birth of a child implies a 20care. Unlike their grand-parents, people will no longer ccept as many children as happen to come along. Mothers expect to be able to plan this even in the face of "accidents." This may not fit everybody's idea of morality either, but it is how people feel today and we must deal with one "extra" child.

that reality as well. The movement toward safe

(Sometimes abortion is the best of a number of imperfect solutions to a patient's problem argues this Victoria family physician, who for obvious reasons must remain anonymous.)

abortions was not begun by doctors. This may be to our blame or to our credit depending on your bias. It was the voices of the women at risk which got so loud and insistant in many countries that governments finally had to do something. The Canadian government was not nearly the first to move, and when it finally did move it passed a poor piece of legislation.

To begin with let us look at what happens (or should hap-pen) when a woman comes unhappily pregnant to her doctor. At this time she has three options open to her: first, keep the baby and arrange her life to look after it until it is grown; second, carry the baby until its birth and then give it up for adoption; third, have an abor-

I spend some time discussing all these with the patient. Knowing of the many families awaiting adoptable babies I lay some stress on the second op tion. If there is time I have her think about all this for a week.

Almost all patients decide on abortion. Almost all express the fear that if they have the baby they will not be able to give it up in the end and then they will be stuck with option number one. They feel this fects on them and, through them, on the child as well. This is usually a realistic assess-ment. The prospect is very

According to law the doctor now applies to a hospital Abor-tion Committee for authorization to perform the abortion, on the grounds of "damage, or probable damage to the patient's physical and/or emotional health." This is the weakness of the legislation The committee has no medical make a medical decision about a patient it has never spoken to examined is medical anathema.

The committee only has a legal function. In authorizing the abortion it takes on itself the responsibility that the government wanted to avoid. Not to avoid it would leave them open to the slings and arrows of the anti-abortionists. When the anti-abortionists claim too many abortions are being done the government can say, "It's not our fault, it's those terrible committees," They have done this on occasion already.

Many critics, including the group of doctors who wrote to the Times, imply that the Therapeutic Abortion Committee of the comment of the comm tee acts as a "rubber stamp. They further imply that they would be happier if the Committee turned down some ap plications to change their

They forget that these applications have already been screened by the doctors who make them. I don't agree with every patient who asks for an abortion. I could "improve" the Committee's statistics by sending in applications even on those patients who I feel should would appeal only to those who are more concerned with statistics than with people.

These statistical critics also persist in comparing the in Victoria with the number of live births per year, and in expressing horror at the com-parison. The figures are not camparable. The parents of almost all babies born in Victoria live in Victoria. However, not all community hospitals in B.C. provide abortion services: The law says that they "may sequence a large number of other places to seek abortion.

This inequity in the law is compounded by the fact that some Vancouver hospitals which do have abortion serto applicants. Thus the Victoria refer to two different populations and have no relationship to each other.

These critics also forever raise the spectre of "abortion on demand." This has become such a charged phrase that it has only emotional value. To me it implies that I would abort someone who asked me to do so without any further consideration. This would never be done. It is simply not consistent with good medicine.

Recent figures published in the U.S. indicate that it is nine times more safe for a woman hospital in the first three months of a pregnancy than it is to carry the baby for nine months and give birth. This is a new finding with interesting implications. The risk of having a baby is still small but the abortion is when done legally in

Would it really be so moral of society to insist that women take the increased risk of havwant to take it? History shows greater risks to have criminal abortions if they must. ing abortions made legally possible has had the immediate benefit of eliminating the horrible complications of criminal abortions. Whether the reduced stress on family life, on mar riages and on society in general will be an added benefit remains to be seen over the next many years.

Finally, I must make clear that I am not happy about doing abortions. It goes against the grain of my own feelings. But in medical practice we daily face problems in which there is no good solution. There is only the best of a number of uncertain solutions.

I regard unwanted pregnancy as a preventable condition. Why people fail to prevent it more often in our community would form the basis for another essay much longer than this one. I will continue to apply my best efforts in this direction. But until people stop making mistakes, I will continue to peform abortions where this appears the best solution for the patient in distress.

If I am to truly help my patient I must pursue the course which seems most acceptable to her, always with full regard to the limitations of the law but with no regard judices. It is the patient's feelings that are important here,

Japanese Purchase B.C. Chips

VANCOUVER (CP) Japanese paper manufacturer has contracted to purchase 7,500 tons of wood chips from the Cariboo and south central interior regions of British Columbia.

The sale was arranged jointly by two industry co-operative groups. The chips, mainly spruce, will be loaded as a single shipment at Port Moody in April.

Southern interior chips are coming from five mills that are members of the Oakana-gan Mainline Independent Chip Producers Co-Operative.

One company, Fraser Mills Ltd. of Quesnel, is loading 230 B.C. Rail cars with chips on behalf of North Cariboo Chip Producers Inc.

Greg Taylor, manager of the Cariboo Lumber Manufacturers Association said Wednesday that a total of about 7,000 bone dry units (a unit is 2,400 pounds) is being bought by the Japanese customer to permit production tests with B.C. spruce chips.

The sale is the second to be

The sale is the second to be announced since the provincial government abolished an export levy on chips on March 3 in order to reduce the huge stockpiles of surplus chips.

international dispute about a B.C. natural gas contract will meet Monday with Premier Bill Bennett in an attempt to Bennett told the legislature Wednesday that the meeting will include representatives of three natural gas companies — one from Alberta, one from Washington state and the other from B.C. — two members of the staff of Washington state Governor Dixie Lee Ray; the chairman of the B.C. Energy Commission; the president of B.C. Petroleum Corp.; National Energy Board representatives; and several B.C. cabinet ministers.

Bennett said he is sure the meeting will produce a compromise solution that will not hurt B.C.'s position in the gas export market.

The dispute involves the in-ability of a B.C. natural gas company, Westcoast Trans-mission, to meet a contract to Northwest Pipeline Co. Ltd. of Washington state.

An Alberta gas company, Pan-Alberta Ltd., has offered to step in and provide 200 mil-lion cubic feet of gas a day to Northwest to fulfill the B.C.

The provincial gopernment, which must give its approval to such a deal, is balking at the terms Pan-Alberta is in for a short period of time to fulfill the gas commitment, but is afraid that th Alberta company will take too large a chunk of the contract.

It is understood that B.C. favors a three year contract with the Alberta company, while Pan-Alberta has offered, at various times, either five years or 12 years.

Ed Phillips, Westcoast pres-Ed Phillips, Westcoast president, said Wednesday the five-year compromise agreement is subject to the approval of the B.C. and Alberta governments and will resolve the festering international row over Westcoast's inability to meet its contracts.

For the last four years Westcoast has been unable to meet its commitment of 809 million cubic feet of gas a day

The situation came to a head Tuesday when the Northwest Pipeline Corporation of Salt Lake City, which buys the B.C. gas for distribution in the U.S., threatened to take action against Westcoast unless it immediately entered

Appeal Upholds Miranda Rule

WASHINGTON (WP) The U.S. Supreme Court decided by one vote Wednesday that a man convicted of a 'senseless and brutal" child murder must have a new trial because Iowa detectives had denied his constitutional right to a fair trial.

The 5-to-4 decision turned back pleas by 22 states for dilution or abandonment of the so-called Miranda rule and other broad constitutional protections that the court under the late Chief Justice Earl Warren provided for criminal defendants.

The justices wrote seven separate opinions. Their sometimes harsh and impassioned language suggested that the case was unusually divisive, partly because of its sensitivity: the victim was a 10-year-old girl who was kid-napped on Christmas Eve, 1968, and raped and suffocat-

Chief Justice Warren Burger, in a rare action, read aloud a 15-page dissent at-tacking the decision as one that "ought to be intolerable in any society which purports to call itself an organized society.'

On Dec. 24, 1968, the family of the victim, Pamela Powers, brought her to the YMCA in Des Moines to watch a wrestling tournament. She left her seat to go to a washroom but did not return. A while later Williams, an escapee from a Missouri mental institution who had moved into the Y, went through its lobby carrying a

Alcohol Use Starts in Grade 4: Survey

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A survey of fourth, fifth and sixth graders in unidentified west coast schools indicates 45 per cent of the children consider themselves users of alcohol.

The study, done for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, said 8 per cent of the children drink at least once a week.

By the fourth grade, the majority of students surveyed already had at least one experience with alcohol," it said. "Nearly half the students surveyed (45 per cent) considered themselves to be ongoing users of alcohol."

"Clearly, exposure of youth to alcohol occurs at an early age," it said.

The study concluded that much of the alcohol use reported by school age children occurs within the family, a pattern that gives way to "friends" and "social occasions" for older youngsters.

Curling Club Marks A Quarter Century

The street number tells it all as far as the start of the Victoria Curling Club is concerned. "1952" is the postal address and also the year that the old VCC came into being. And the late Bill Hyde would undoubtedly be proud of the dream that he nurtured and saw through to its early fruition.

It was in 1947 that Hyde started his personal crusade to have a curling club in the city. Victoria, to him, was out of step without one; and the first time the call went out for funds to see what could be done, a newly-formed executive emptied its collective pockets and the princely sum of $105

It wasn't much, but it was a start, and it was on Saturday, Feb. 14, 1953, that the inaugural ceremonies were held. Lieutenant-Governor Clarence Wallace cut the ribbon as the club president, the late Max Zabel, looked on.

Let's see — 1953 — that was the year that a fellow named Reg Stone was to win the B.C. Consols playdown and represented the province in the Brier. Ab Gowanlock of Dauphin won the event, but the prime importance here was that Victoria was in the audies was the victoria was not because which was the victoria was not because when we want to the victoria was not because when we was the victoria was not a victoria was not victoria was not a victoria was not a victoria was not victoria was not a victoria was not victoria.

Since then, of course, all sorts of things have happened at the VCC. In 1957, two delegates and several members made the trip to Kingston and sold the Macdonald people on the idea of having the Brier in Victoria.

And so the Canadian curling championship came here in 1938 and guess who represented the province? The VCC that is who, with Tony Gutoski as skip, Bill Dunstan at third, Gary Leibel at second and Dale Dalziell at lead.

No, they didn't win. Matt Baldwin of Edmonton did; but now it is 19 years later and that same rink of Gutoski, Dunstan, Leibel and Dalziell is back together and in this year's 25th anniversary event. Odds on? Maybe now; but don't count said about Tony then? Good. Because he's still the respected father confessor for all local curlers.

... Tony Gutoski, skip of this year's B.C. Brier entry, not only knows how to get the rock from one end of the ice to the other, he knows how to make ice too. Born in Eden, Manitoba, Tony started curling in 1928 at the ripe old age of 12. He joined the Victoria club in 1952 and this is his second year with his present rink. He's got a lot of hardware in his trophy chest including two club championships, 1954 and 1955, and the Port Alberni Grand Aggregate in 1956 and '57. He curled in the provincial Consols three times but this is his first crack at the Brier tankard. Tony is known for his work in promoting junior curling and he's got two of the younger set (Leibel was 19 and Dalziell 20) on his rink now." was 19 and Dalziell 20) on his rink now."..

So time came and went, as it always does, and list of club presidents became long ... Gerry Lauder, George Tucker, Kirby Moysey, Ernie Gordon, Charlie Hodgson, Glen Walkey, Gerry Walls, Eric Bullock, Frank Burden, Ken Sturrock, for the first time, Morley MacDonald, Dick Pick, Gar Taylor, Dick Samson, Gordie Moore, Norm Stewardson, John Oster, Alf Savage, Pat Thompson, Gus Macdonald, Sturrock again and now Dick Austin. again and now Dick Austir

And the honor roll grew as well, with the ladies finishing on top twice if you please.

In 1974, a senior rink skipped by Flora Martin and with Edna Messum, Doreen Baker and Betty Stubbs up front, won the Canadian championship. To prove it was no fluke, they

The senior men tried, but only came close. Gordon Moore, Dick Pick, Joe Leibel, Laurie Perlette went to the Canadian championship in 1969; Moore, again, with Gordon Hooey at third, Pick at second and the late Jack Smith at lead, represented the province in 1971; and Gordon Walker, O. J. Powell, Wayne Winkler and Elmer Hoffman carried provincial honors into the nationals in 1974.

Otherwise, Moore skipped his rink of Bill Purdy, Jack Parr and Bert Edmond to the B.C. seniors' championship in 1975. Before that, the girls had a fling at glory. Judy Leibel, Marie Leibel, Ellen Dennison and Joan Dunn won the B.C. girls title in 1962.

For the women, Marion Bradley was the first president of the evening division, as Shirley Burley is now; and Norah Dunstan headed the afternoon division where Bernie Morriss calls the shots today.

And the girl in the front office is Ada Fuller, who undoubtedly will be recalled as chairman of the Macdonald Lassie when the Canadian championship was held here

And the best part is that here was hardly a shot missed in all that time. That's what it sounded like Wednesday at the opening night of the 25th anniversary bonspiel. After 25 years, everybody was a winner. Which is what anniversaries

And often, as he sits lacing up his boots in the dressing area, you'll hear him regaling friends with his hockey tales and perhaps showing them a few yellowed photographs and crumpled newspaper cuttings. You'll hear Duke, who was born in Poland and came to Canada in 1912, talk fondly of his beloved Trail Smoke Eaters, with whom he played when they won the Allan Cup in 1938 and whom he coached to the world hockey cham-pionship the following year. You'll hear him reminisce about such greats on the Trail team in those days as Mike Buckna, who went on to be-come coach of the Czechoslo-vakian team and a national Morris of Trail; and Jo Benoit, who later gained fame with the Montreal Canadiens.

But Duke will tell you that the best team he ever played for was the Coleman Tigers in Alberta.

For 10 years, Duke Kwas-ney lived in the little mining town of Bankhead near Banff.

"Later, I was traded to San Francisco Tigers in the Cali-fornia League, went back east and played with Pittsburgh, then the Boston Cubs, had a year playing in Saskatoon and then I ended up back in Cole-man again," Duke explains.

After coaching there three years (the Tigers were West-ern Canadian intermediate champions, Duke coached in Blairmore, Alberta, for a year and then moved to Trail as a player with the Smoke Eaters in 1937.

Playing the kind of hockey we played in the 40s — good, clean hockey with plenty of hard body-checking but no rough stuff."

And soon it's time for Duke

The largely student audience favored visiting professor William Epstein, a former UN secretariat disarmament director, in a debate with the retired senior Canadian in North American Air Defence Command, Lieut-Gen. Reg Lane, on whether nuclear weapons remain an effective determent to war.

Although in the debate Lane upheld the case for nuclear arms, he said at the end he had faith in human nature to resolve confrontation without going to war.

The above was the bidding sequence that developed at one of the tables. In view of the final result, South would have done much better if he had chosen to pass North's penalty double of West's three-club overcall. West would have incurred a twotrick set, for a loss of 500

After his king of clubs had won the first trick, West shifted to the ace of spades, which South ruffed. It appeared to South — a non-expert — that the success of his contract depended on the six outstanding hearts being divided 3-3, or on the outside possibility that one of the defenders possessed the doubleton J-10 of hearts. So, at trick two, he cashed

So, at trick two, he cashed the ace and king of trumps, gathering in the outstanding pieces. He then decided to continue with five more trump leads, hoping that the defenders would discard hearts. But East quite naturally discarded all of his spades a since ed all of his spades, since

Declarer overlooked a line of play that an expert would have found — and brought the contract home safely. After ruffing West's spade lead attrick two, he would have eashed the trump ace. Next would come the ace, king and queen of hearts, West failing to follow suit to the third heart lead. A fourth heart lead would come next, lead would come next, dummy ruffing with its remaining trump. Admittedly, declarer would have been lucky to have found the defender with only two hearts with but a singleton trump. But what would it have cost declarer to avail himself of this possibility? It was "on the house": if two trumps were in the hand that possessed only two hearts, then the contract would be

Blissful Mousse Indecently Rich

When Alain Chapel, generally acknowledged to be one of the 10 or 12 finest chefs of France, arrived in my kitchen, he looked disconsolate.

"You will never know what where I sit, I'd say the young woman is holding all the aces, but if you want to know your legal rights, engage a lawyer. Beyond that, I recommend happened," he explained. "I asked for calves' ears. They sent me three cows' heads."

This curious problem had had its genesis a few days before, when Chapel was in-vited to come into my kitchen to cook and to prepare any dish traditionally served in his famed restaurant in Mionnay, a small town only a few kilometers removed from Lyons, which is often called

Chef Chapel, who is 39 years old and began his kitchen training when he was 15, made considerable news in the food world a few years ago. In a five-year span his restaurant went meteor-like from one to three stars in the Guide Michelin. Three stars is, of course, the ultimate number awarded by the wide.

When it was learned that Chapel was in Manhattan for Chapel was in Manhattan for a three-week stint of cooking at the Four Seasons restaurant we invited him to visit us. And early one morning he telephoned, his voice alive with excitement, to state he had found a fantastic source for calves' ears and thus he would be pleased to prepare one of the dishes most in demand by visitors to his restaurant, oreille de veau, persil frit, or stuffed calves' ears with fried parsley. with fried parsley.

It was good news, for we knew the dish by reputation to be one of his finest and most talked about creations. It is stuffed with a fantasy mixture and the whole thing breaded

Well, he didn't get the calves' ears and in his frustration Chef Chapel decided to tration Chef Chapel decided to prepare a main course of young chicken, stuffed with truffles and served with a foie gras sauce and sea salt, poulette gros sel. This, too, would be a compromise for he had really wanted to prepare another of his specialities, poulette en vessie, which is the same truffle-stuffed chicken same truffle-stuffed chicken tightly enveloped in a well-cleaned pork bladder and cooked in a rich chicken broth. Even the most sophisticated butcher in this country

In addition to the chicken, Chef Chapel prepared many other fine dishes, including what surely must be his ul-timate triumph, one of the absolute cooking glories of this generation. It is his gateau de foies blonds, a blissfully silken, creamy, mousselike cre-ation made with pureed chick-en livers and beef marrow. It is indecently rich and served with a sinfully seductive sauce of lobster and cream.

MONTREAL (CP) - CFCF MONTRFAL (CP) — CFCF radio and television employees walked off the job Wednesday to support contract demands and are expected to remain on strike until at least early next week, union spokesman Adrien Gagnier said.

About 170 members of the National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians (NABET) voted by more than 70 per cent in favor of the strike at a general control of the strike wedges as the strike wedges as the strike st meeting Wednesday.

The vote came one day after the breakdown of con-tract talks attended by a government-appointed -mediator. ernment-appointed -mediator.

John Krug, chief negotiator
for Multiple Access Ltd., which owns the CTV network station, said he objected to a contract of one year's duration which was being sought by NABET.

Leeks Need Special Care

Although the leek is a member of the onion family its culture is different from that of the bulbous onions.

The edible portion of a leek is not a bulb, it is the blanched leaves and stem which have grown below soil

Whereas the bulbous onions are planted shallow and the bulb allowed to develop above blanched stem.

"Leek seed is sown indoors around the end of February to the beginning of March, fairly thickly in a four-inch clay pot. The seedlings are grown cool indoors until about eight inches in height, at which stage they are ready for transplanting to the open gar-allowed to reach the eight inch height before being transpant-ed to the open rows.

The novice will usually sow directly into the garden rows, like potatoes to obtain the blanched stem.

Rarely does this method provide more than two or three inches of stem instead of the eight inches of which the plant is canable, and at the plant is capable, and at the same time it is an un-necessary waste of garden

Exhitions of nothing but leeks are an annual feature in the Midlands in England, and competiton is so keen that the hidsen was collins and rules. judges use calipers and rules to determine the winners.

The judges look for a blanched portion at least eight inches in length, a width of about two inches, and no inbase. Both the roots and the green leaves are trimmed. To obtain specimens of these dimensions the gar-dener first prepare a deep fine soil well laced with com-

into the holes and almost disappear the top of the foliage being just at, or a little below The garden hose is then used to fill each hole with water. As the water flows into the holes it carries with it enough soil to cover the bare roots. No more attention is needed. The foliage soon ap-pears above soil level and the stem will expand to fill the Leeks are a hardy crop which is left in the soil for use over winter, usually from Christmas to March. The flavor, always mild compared with the bulbous onions is improved after several frosts. Persons unable to eat bulbous onions due to their high sulphur content, aften find leeks quite digestible.

The leek is a true biennial, making its growth one year and producing a large seed head in the year that follows. Many gardeners leave one plant in the ground to provide seed for the next year.

When flower stems appear in spring the chemistry of the plant is changed and it is no longer considered good for culinary purposes. Any plants remaining at the end of the season can be chopped into small pieces to make a useful

2 Departments Feuding Over Rapeseed Ban

Times Ottawa Bureau OTTAWA - Federal health rapeseed oil used in many rapeseed oil used n many foods has adverse effect on some rats.

The heatlh department is evaluating the significance of the tests for human beings, but agriculture officials are concerned about the effects on Canada's rapeseed industry of any government decision based on the experiments which they say are not sufficient.

The issue could blow up into a battle between the two de-partments and it was learned that a statement has been prepared for Agriculture minister Eugene Whelan to issue if it is needed to forestall any quick action by Health Minister Marc Lalonde.

A spokesman for the health protection branch confirmed Wednesday that research into the product-used in such foods as margarine and salad oilshowed "adverse effects on some animals" but stressed that the data so far collected don't warrant an outright ban on the use of rapeseed oil for human consumption.

Officials of the agriculture and health departments dis-cussed the issue with the Rapeseed Association of Canada in Vancouver Tuesday and Wednesday.

He said in an interview that the finders are not as strong as those which led to the ban last week on saccharin.

Migicovsky said that the oil was found to produce heart muscle lesions in one strain of rat tested and then only in the male. The large doses did not kill the animals.

He stated that no one knows what the effect of similar doses of rapeseed oil would be on human beings.

"What's so holy about a white rat?" he demanded. The assistant deputy minister expressed concern that on the basis of the type of data obtained from the experiments on rats "people will jump to said his department was threatened several years ago when it was found to con-tain a high proportion of euru-sic acid, a fatty acid which was considered dangerous to human health.

The eurusic acid content was reduced through research to less than one per cent, but other fatty acids which took its place caused concern and prompted further studies by the health department.

Migicovsky stated that if rapeseed oil formed 50 per cent of a human diet fatty deposits in the heart muscle could result.

But he argued that fatty acid imbalance could be caused by many other foods as well and

Traders Fined $200 For 'Deceptive' Ad

nishings Ltd., 715 Finlayson, was convicted Wednesday in Victoria provincial court on one of two charges laid under the provincial Trade Prac-

The charge of deceptive advertising, laid by the trades practices branch of the provincial consumer and corporate affairs ministry, resulted in a $200 fine.

The firm was found guilty by Judge D. K. McAdam of "... failure to give equal prominence to the total price of a consumer transaction and did thereby computed described as the construction of the constructi did thereby commit a deceptive act ..." in connection with an ad appearing in a June edition of the Colonist.

The advertisment also appeared in the Times and another newspaper but the charge only referred to the Colonist and CKDA.

The advertisement was for home freezers, and crown counsel Richard Law argued that nowhere in the ad did the total price appear, while "$10 a month" was prominently displayed in the ad.

The same charge, in connection with a commercial broadcast on radio station CKDA, was dismissed by McAdam because copywriter McAdam because copywher Kay Scolnick wrote in the phrase "purchase for as little as $10 a month," which the judge ruled took the representation a little further than the original intent of the com-

McAdam stated that he based the guilty verdict on testimony that Vic Kowalchuk, one of the principals of the firm, was personally responsible for the newspaper layout of the ad.

When Law said he was not asking for the maximum fine of $100,000, defence lawyer Ted Pollard barely contained

Pollard argued that the radio ad was the fault of the copywriter who inserted the word "purchase." He said the radio ads were made up from the newspaper ads and that the ad in the Colonist did not

He said no evidence was led as to the "intent" of his client to deceive and that to be deto deceive and that to be de-ceptive, one must intend to make the consumer make an error in judgment. Common sense was 'still applicable in interpreting the legislation, Pollard continued.

"How can anyone reading the ad think he can purchase a freezer for $10?" Pollard

After McAdam's decision, Law called the director of the Trades Practices Branch, Michael Hanson, to the stand to testify that the firm was fined $100 in 1973 for a similar oflence under the Consumer Protection Act.

Hanson also told the court under questioning that the firm signed an assurance of voluntary compliance on March 25, 1975, in connection with another ad.

Ettore Bugatti lives! In Oak Bay. At least in

A full-sized replica of a Bugatti 35A boat-tail sports-rac-ing car is nearing completion in a quiet cul-de-sac, light years removed from the roar, smoke and smell of Grand Prix racing a generation ago.
Painter Len Gibbs, of 2079 Windsor, is building the car from an authentic copy of the body shell and improvised mechanical parts and fittings. Bugatti, who died in 1947, would have loved it.

One of the world's greats in automobile design, Bugatti in the Roaring 1920s produced some of the most beautiful and memorable Grand Prix

The 1927 Type 35A is adaptappeared in 1924 as the Type 35 2-litre racing car, which later was fitted with supercharger to meet competitors on equal terms and came out as 35C and 35B before settling down into the main sports car version, The Type

Today they are rare. Out of about 1,000 produced from Bugatti's Mosheim works near Strasbourg, only something like 100 survive and are valued at around $150,000 each, Gibbs said. "I wanted one just to tear around in and I wanted the same feel and weight."

Is he pleased? It handles like a scalded

The body, of moulded fibre-glass, is from Jerred Co. Inc., in Illinois. The rest of the car comes from all over North America, with bits and pieces from the U.K. and Europe.

The Volkswagen chassis is almost a perfect match with minor modifications; the engine, mounted over the rear axle, is also stock Volks-wagen, but made up of three different engines to give it racing cams and such refinements as an alternator in anticipation of city driving.

The spoked wheels came from a derelict domestic tar at Williams Lake, tires were ordered new from Texas; the cast and enamelled badge is being made in Edmonton; the distinctive horseshoe radiator shell was made here by Den-ford Sheet Metal and chromed by Devonshire Plating. The radiator ornament is a real thermometer and the
